Vertabase supports Michigan Council of Women and Technology

Software donation facilitates administration of projects and events

OAK PARK, MI, May 1, 2007 - Vertabase, a leading developer of project management software, today announced its support of the Michigan Council of Women in Technology (MCWT) with the donation of multiple licenses of Vertabase Pro project management software.

MCWT provides leadership, mentoring, community outreach, professional development and networking to professional women within the Michigan technology community. MCWT provides a robust web of technology resources and an industry voice for its constituents while fostering the support of an advancement of women and best practices in technology. This progressive organization offers comprehensive programs structured to effectively bring value to a diverse group of professionals.

Vertabase Pro offers project management tools for non-technical users to organize people and projects by simplifying, centralizing and accelerating access to critical up-to-date information. Vertabase Pro facilitates superior management by providing a framework for increased productivity.

"We are delighted to count Vertabase as one of our corporate sponsors and we thank them for their support," said Jennifer Pfaff, VP Operations, MCWT. "Vertabase Pro is a highly-regarded enterprise project management software solution and we are confident that our members will benefit greatly from complimentary access to this technology," Ms. Pfaff added.

"Vertabase is proud to support the Michigan Council of Women and Technology," said Mark Phillips, CEO, Vertabase. "The MCWT is an impressive local organization that actively supports the diversification of the Michigan economy and invests in the future of women in our state," Mr. Phillips added.

Along with corporate sponsors including Microsoft (NASDAQ: MSFT), Cisco Systems (NASDAQ: CSCO)

and Sun Microsystems (NASDAQ: SUNW), Vertabase will be recognized for its contribution to the MCWT at the Partnership and Scholarship Event, to be held at the Birmingham Country Club on May 3rd. For more information, please visit www.mcwt.org.
