Vertabase Pro project management software for web development and internet projects

OAK PARK, MI, Nov. 14, 2006 - Vertabase, a leading developer of productivity-enhancing project management software, today announced that Caffeine Internet Solutions, a full-service Web company providing planning and design, development, marketing and site maintenance, has implemented Vertabase Pro software.

Vertabase Pro organizes people and projects by simplifying, centralizing and accelerating access to critical up-to-date information. Vertabase Pro facilitates management by providing a framework for increased productivity.

Founded in 1999 and based in New Haven, CT, Caffeine designs and maintains Web sites for numerous regional, national and international clients, including: University of Connecticut, Bradley International Airport, Okemo Mountain Resort and BIC Corporation (Euronext Paris: BIC).

With about 50 projects on-going at any given time - each running anywhere from two to 200 hours - the Caffeine team relies on an efficient project management framework to keep projects on-time and on-budget.

"Completing the final 5% of a project usually requires a disproportionate amount of time and effort, which hurts our overall productivity," said Bill Mulligan, President, Caffeine Internet Solutions. "Vertabase Pro has helped us get that final 5% under control. It is a powerful project management tool that interoperates seamlessly with Microsoft Project and QuickBooks, is backed-up by excellent training and technical support, and is very competitively priced. In fact, after one year of being very satisfied with the product and support, we just renewed our license with Vertabase."

"We use Vertabase Pro for scheduling and time-tracking. It has enabled us to eliminate loose ends. Furthermore, Vertabase Pro has not been 'down' once in the last year. Bottom line: When we implemented Vertabase Pro, our resource utilization was at about 60% efficiency. Now, it's at around 85% - that's a 25% gain in overall productivity thanks to Vertabase Pro," Mr. Mulligan concluded.
